Skills for Justice offers a range of training and qualifications aimed at ‘training the trainer’ – ensuring your organisation has highly skilled and competent practitioners in charge of training other employees and assuring the quality of output.

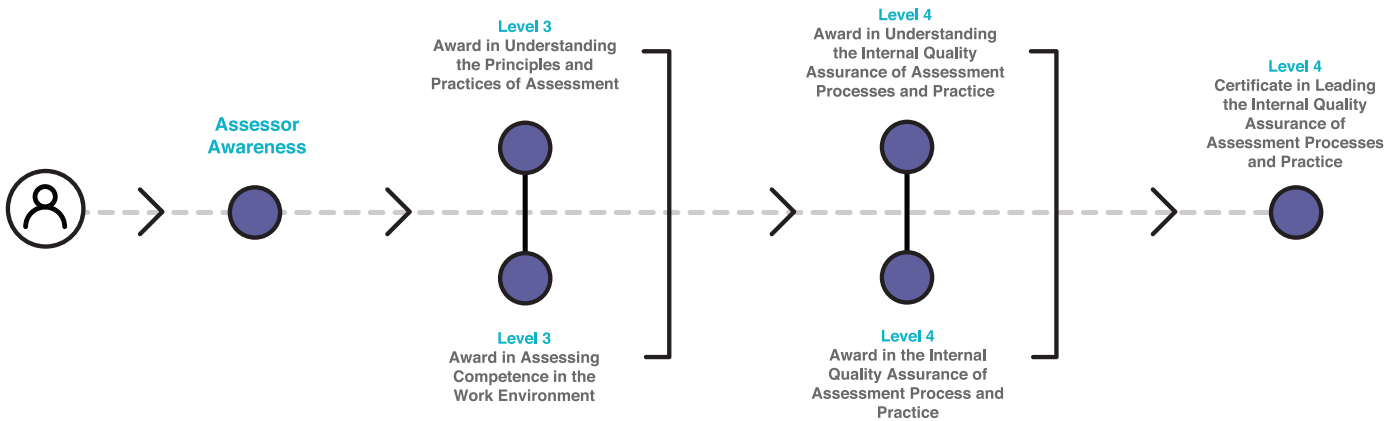

How are our qualifications delivered?

Skills for Justice works with our training centre, the Workforce Development Trust Centre, to develop and deliver the training to your learners. Our courses are accredited by our awarding organisation, SFJ Awards.

We are passionate about quality assurance. Just as your learners are held to the standards and needs of the qualifications they take, we are held to the standards of holding Accredited Centre status to be able to deliver them – giving you confidence that your employees are delivered best-in-class training and development.
